Ex-Governor Warmoth Tells a Good Story at Ben Butler's Expense.

"I was at a State fair at Manchester, N. H.," said ex-Governor Warmoth, of Louisiana, the other day to a Washington Post man, "away back in 1873. It was the usual sort of a New England fair—an agricultural horse trot with brass band and political speeches. Ben Butler was up for the speech. The audience was on the grand stand, one side the race track, and Ben Butler and the rest of us big guns in the judges' stand on the other side.

"Tellow-citizens of my native State,' be-

"'Fellow-citizens of my native State,' began the bold Ben, 'I shall address you to-day on the subject of Federal, State and municipal taxation.'

"Butler sailed along and had got well warmed up when a corn-fed farmer drove along the track with twenty yoke of oxen and a cart piled up with corn, pumpkins and other farm products and a couple of buxom country girls on top. He was proud of that turnout and took his time getting of that turnout and took his time getting by the grand stand. Of course Butler had to stop till it got out of the way. Then he began again and warmed up once more. By that time another farmer had got jedous of the impression the first one had made, and he came jee-hawing down the track with thirty yoke of cattle and a still bigger cart loaded away up with big squashes and pumpk in a and four slashing-looking red-cheeked girls on his load, each one holding a red ear of corn in her hand. Well, that cheeked girls on his load, each one holding a redear of corn in her hand. Well, that outfit made a big sensation on the grand stand and attracted more attention than Jim Robinson driving a twenty-horse circus chariot would. Of course Butler had to stop again. He was getting mad.

"Can't this thing be stopped? he asked. 'I don't want to be headed off by every Jake in New Hampshire who wants to make a holy show of himself.'

"So some one was sent off up the track to stop further interruptions, and Butler got along as far as fifthly, and was getting red in the face, when what should come along the track but another caravan. This one in the face, when what should come along the track but another caravan. This one had nearly forty yoke of oxen, every one a seven-footer, as sleek as bulls and as fat as butter. The cart was full of apple-butter, school-marms, and the grand stand knew them all, and went wild with delight. To say that Butler was mad would be useless. He got his eyes almost wide open.

"If another one of those infernal cattle shows comes along," said he, Till leave the shows comes along,' said he, 'I'll leave the platform. Fil be hanged if I am going to be broken in upon every ten minutes.'

"This time a messenger was sent up the track, who headed off all the rest of the procession, and Butler went along swimmingly for a quarter of an hour longer, when a big brass band struck up back of the grand stand. It was a visiting band from somewhere up State; it thought it was some unmixing and it is the stand of the grand stand. pumpkins, and it just put in and olew for dear life. Lord, what a noise it made! But Butler wasn't going to be 'phased' by a big brass band, even if two-thirds of the crowd were craning their necks for a sight of the musicians. Just then the fire-bells over in Manchester set up an infernal clang-whang-Manchester set up an infernal clang-whanging, and every engine in the city had paraded out into the fair grounds. Down the track they tore at full speed, one after another, fires up, smoke rolling out of the stacks, bells clauging, and horses laying their bellies almost on the ground, while every boy in Manchester chased along behind, yelling like demons, and the grand stand tumbling over each other to see where the fire was.

"That was the end of it. Butler tore up his notes and danced all over the platform, blue with rage, and swearing like a trooper, while I climbed down behind the stand where I could laugh."

Did they possess the power to elicit it, enraged by his tyranny, they would set and keep the world in fiames. His superiority would wane, and his tenure on earth be uncertain and insecure. To prevent this, special provision has been made. Animals fly from fire—a dread of it is implanted in their natures, Those that prey in the night are compelled by a law of their organization to avoid it; for when dazzled by the blaze of a torch, the contraction of their pupils amounts in some contraction of their pupils amounts in some species to blindness, and in all the sight is

Hence, though many of the lower triber surpass man in physical energies, speed, flight, duration of life, minuteness and mag nitude of their works, happily none can strike fire, nor fan it into flame. Still lights in the night were not withheld wholly from in the night were not withheld wholly from the lower tribes. For those that required them, a special illuminating element was provided. There are some that surpass in numbers the human species, of which every individual carries a torch that rivals in brilliance the best of our candles, the ma-terials for which they have the power to secrete. ANNUAL SIN-CLEANING.

An Astonishing Ceremony Witnessed in Northern Mexico.

A Young Greaser Scourged with Cactus Spikes—Faith That Sustains Penitents Through Great Torture-Atone-

"Any one who has ever been on the cat-tle trail in Texas or New Mexico has seen many illustrations of the profound fear and religious faith of the Mexican cowbeys," said C. P. Horton, proprietor of the Loupas cattle ranch in New Mexico, to a New York Sun reporter. "The languages of their Sun reporter. "The laceration of their flesh with thorny cactus in time of danger or trouble, as a penance for their sins, is a common act among them, and many is the herd of cattle that has suffered enormous loss through Mexicans in charge of them at-taching more importance to their barbarous atonement for past wickedness than they did to the cattle in their oustody. I once knew a herd of 3,500 cattle to be stampeded in a thunder-storm because the Mexicans who were trailing them were afraid of thunder and lightning, and threw them-selves from their horses, stripped them-selves, and lashed their naked bodies with cactus as a propitiation of the elements, while the herd rushed wildly away in all directions and hundreds were lost.

"It is not an uncommon thing for Mexican cowboys to stop on the trail to punish them-selves for their sins. Frequently their cries while giving themselves the thorny flagellation cause a disastrous stampede of the cattle they have been entrusted with. I have many a time seen these Mexicans walk barefooted for rods over patches of cactus spikes, while a companion followed and lashed their naked backs with the same thorny plant—the formidable cane cactus. Once I was in a town in Northern Mexico and witnessed an astonishing exhibition.

"I had a friend down there who was looking after the interests of a mining com-pany, and as I had been asked to go into the concern, I went down to look the ground over. I arrived in the place on Friday-just a year ago last Good Friday.

"'You're just in time,' exclaimed my friend when we met. 'They're going to give this community its annual sin-cleaning by lashing a greaser till you can't tell him from a side of dressed beef, and we'll go see 'em do it.'

"He then explained to me that on every Good Friday at least one Mexican in the parish had to submit to public flagellation with cane cactus, as a penance not only for his sins for the year past, but for those of the community in general. I accompanied my friend to see how an official flagellation was conducted: "We went first to the church, which was an ancient one. In the altar stood a young Mexican stripped to the waist. The priest was saying prayers over him, and all the were kneeling and telling their

"That's a chap they call Bad Lopez,' whispered my friend. 'He has evidently beaten the record for wickedness this year, and will get the tickler.' "The ceremonies at the church were soon over. Then Bad Lopez took up a heavy cross that lay near the altar, threw it across his shoulder, and followed the priest out of the church. The cross was made of timber eight inches square. It was not less than eight feet long, with cross arms in propor-tion. Lopez bent under its weight. The people in the church followed Lopez. The procession marched nearly half a mile, and the Mexican couldn't have carried that heavy cross another rod. But the destination had been reached. A cross had been raised on the spot, and around this Lopez walked once and laid his cross on the ground. The crowd surrounded the standing cross. Two stout Mexicans stepped forward. Each had in his hand a stalk of cane cactus. A stalk of cane cactus is about four feet long. A man can just nicely reach around its butt and get a firm hold of it. The stalk tapers to a point, and has numerous branches, four or five inches long. Stalk and branches are covered with thousands of needle-like thorns. These are an inch long and as poisonous as a bee-stinger. Every wound made by one of these spikes is bound to made by one of these spikes is bound to swell and fester and itch worse than nettles. "It was with one of these encouraging weapons that each of Lopez's scourgers was armed. They were apparently anxious to purify that parish without delay, for they did not besitate a moment when they stepped from the crowd, but started right in to threshing the young Mexican's bare back as if they were simply rattling out a floor of grain. Around and around that cross Lopez marched, his flagellators at his heels, and wielding their frightful weapons with vigor and regularity, while the spec-tators chanted a weird and discordant hymn. At the first blow of the cactus the hymn. At the first blow of the cactus the Mexican's back was lacerated as if it had been cut by lances, and the blood ran down in streams. A visible tremor shook his frame, and he drew himself down convulsively under the pain of the first blow, but not a sound escaped his lips. The poison spikes were pounded into his flesh as long at these trans are a proposed. as there were any branches to the cactus stalk. By the time the terrible scourgers were worn out there was not a spot of whole skin or unforn flesh from the Mexi-can's shoulders to his waist. Scores of the thorns had broken off in the flesh, and pro-truded from the lacerated mass like porcupine quills. "As soon as the merciless beating was over, Lopez was marched back again to the church. At the church door a smooth bar church. At the church door a smooth bar of wood was passed over his mangled back from the shoulders down, to remove such of the spikes and adhering sections of the cactus as would come off with the scraping. Those, with other bits of cactus that the spectators had picked up around the cross, were thrown on the ground in front of the church door, and over these Lopez walked in his bare feet, to and fro several times. Then the sacrifice was over. The Mexican had atoned for a whole parish's sins and his friends took him home. I don't know whether he ever got well or not, but I was told that it was a common thing for the vic-

The Palatta (Fla.) Herald is responsible for the following: "A man at a small station on the Florida Southern railway the other day took down the mail sack, which was suspended on the crane, and hung himself there instead, so that he would not get left. When the fast mail came along and the route agent put out his catcher and hauled in the man instead of the mail-bag the fellow, in short breath, said: 'I've been left too many times by this narrow-gauge road and I don't intend to get left any more if it kills me or this infernal old road.'".

whether he ever governor not, but I was told that it was a common thing for the victims of these flagellations to be six months recovering from the effects of the punishment and that once in awhile one died."

OURS is an immense country in every respect, as is evinced by the successful negotiation of the loan of $150,000,000 accomplished by the Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad from the United States Trust Company of New York. It is a very suggestive fact. It seems as if it is very much easier for a private corporation in this country to get any amount it may please for a loan than some of the Burks Aunt Before the Grand crowned heads. By the way, poor King Kalakula has to give up, or at least to postpone indefinitely his European tour, owing to difficulties to which most of our corporations are strangers.

Now that our British cousins are investing their sovereigns in the American breweries it seems that this policy should be encouraged; for when it should be necessary in the course of human events to twist the lion's tail, it would be a pious idea for us to adopt prohibition for a reasonable period of time. Then the smart Yankee would buy back his property and sell out again upon the repeal of the amendment. Joun Buil has a very touchy spot-his purse-and he will quickly come to terms.

The desired data should be as accurate as possible, so that my compilation of facts therefrom may be warrented as sufficiently reliable to justify prompt action by those whose duty it will be to formulate plans of operation with reference to the same. I would also request suggestions concerning thereby.

The desired data should be as accualso request suggestions concerning the creation of artificial sources of supply and systems of storage of water for the reclamation of irrigable lands, together with such practical views as observation may afford the investigators of these subjects within their respective neighborhoods. Herewith I enclose a blank form to be used, so far as may be, in replying to the several questions therein de-tailed. Said form should be filled out and returned, with such supplemental information and maps as may be obtainable, as soon as convenient. Its tainable, as soon as convenient. Its return should not be deferred later than the first of next September, in order to accomplish any good during the present year. Reference to Section 9 of an Act of the last Legislatare, concerning the regulation of the use of water for irrigation, etc. [see page 109, Statutes of Nevada, 1889], shows the precessity for filling statements conof water to firing atoh, etc., see page 109, Statutes of Nevada, 1889], shows the necessity for filing statements concerning water rights, etc., on or before the first day of said September. Therefore all the preliminary surveying, etc., to enable the proprietors of ditches, canals and other water courses properly to define their rights, should be completed on or before said date. Meanwhile, it is suggested that they prepare in advance of their statements for record such outlines thereof as may express the facts I desire to learn, and promptly transmit the same to this office. Such a course will greatly expedite my labor of compilation, and obviate the necessity of procuring abstracts from the several County Recorders, which abstracts probably could not be obtained until some time after said date.

Matters of Interest on Wells, Horses and Crops.

A GAZETTE reporter flew through

Washoe Valley yesterday and found people cutting their hay so as to save the water in their ditches for grain fields and gardens.

A settler on the east side of Washoe Lake sunk an artesian well but failed to go deep enough to test the question owing to defective machinery. One sunk a couple of miles off got a small fow of water but nothing to one near Mr. Winters' house which was put down 318 feet. He contracted with Mr. Woods to go down a thousand feet but could not for sand. The whole valley seems to be a sand bed and it flowed in at the 300 foot level as bad as at the top. Several nice streams of water had to be shut off in order to get depth.

A very curious thing in this well was the discovery at 230 feet, of pieces of wood and a pine cone below which a bed of charcoal and cinders was pierced, showing that man lived here very long ages ago. The sand is full of mica and nothing but a human hand ever built a fire in such a place as there is no sign of volcanic action.

People raised on a farm or in a trading family can have no idea of the feelings and home habits and methods of thought of a family whose lives have been occupied in raising world-beating race horses, such as Theodore Winters has for twenty years been doing. His children have always been familiar with fine stock, and the birth of a highbred colt is an event quite familiar to a boy or girl in many places The beautiful sons and daughters of Norfolk and Hooker certainly are worthy of admiration and love, with their glossy coats, beautiful forms and graceful action, and how any one can be brought up beside them, sharing in brought up beside them, sharing in their romp and play, can help loving them, is hard to see.

Mrs. Winters' parlor is adorned with fine oil paintings of The Czar and Don Jose, and she has photographs or paintings of Mollie McCarty, Miss Courtney, El Rio Rey and other beauties. There were as sincere mourners for The Czar as any human could ask for himself, and tears flowed freely in the stable boy's quarters as well as the the stable boy's quarters as well as the parlor. She boy who had attended him from his birth wrote a poem on his death, but has sent no copy home yet. Mrs. Winters says she dreaded to open a telegram or letter after his death foreign more had link. The death, fearing more bad luck. The news began to come that the stable vas winning its races, however, and as fast as the telegrams came they were forwarded to Reno. She thinks it will be hard to decide where the credit of victory is to go. Every one in Sacra-mento calls them Sacramento horses, while it is well known here that they are sagebrugh stock from the shoes up. The young ladies of the family dug up all their savings to back the horses with, but as Mr. Winters is a near later with the saving a trace. poor letter writer they are in a state of delicious doubt as to whether they have won a great deal or only a little. They all believe that Don Jose will win the Derby to-morrow, however, and then they will get big dividends. Mrs. Winters says Dan McCarthy's Sorrento is his only dangerous rival. The Gazette hopes the young ladies may get a big sack full of Chicago dollars.

WATER AND SNOW.

Information Which Encourages the Hope for Good Crops.

The GAZETTE has had reliable reports from the headwaters of the Truckee during the last two weeks and they all show that there is twice as much snow as at this time last year. Every little stream is full and every spring pours out its tiny flood. The ground is soaked with water and the feed is as good as it has been any spring since stock began to feed there. Meantime the river is falling and it is rather a puzzle to know why it is low. The air seems to be thirsty in a dry The air seems to be thirsty in a dry year and licks up immense quantities of water from every lake and running stream so that all that starts does not get down. Then the lakes are keeping back all they can hold. Webber is higher than it was last year, and floods hundreds of acres of meadow on the south end. It has all the water the charter calls for. The other lakes are storing up the precious treaslakes are storing up the precious treasure also and the GAZETTE has full faith that the Truckee will hold out full as well or better than last year.

A company of Oakland gentlem organized by Dr. Fonda have leased Independence lake for purposes of pleasure. If there is any sensible way to spend money that is one. It gives elegant summer quarters with hunting, fishing, pure water and honest mountain air, in the finest scenery to be found.

The Fourth of July Meeting. The GAZETTE is requested to state that the Fourth of July meeting will be held at the Public Reading Room this evening, and not at Armory Hall as announced.

NICKELS AND CENTS.

How They Are Made and What They Are Made Of.

es in Outstanding Coins-How Un Sam Gathers Millions from His Stamping Machines—The Silver-

ning Proc The other day the Treasury Department issued a circular proposing to ship free of express charges to persons desiring them nickels and pennies in certain quantities on receipt of their face value. The offer suggested some inquiries in regard to the cost of these coins and how it happens that the Government can ship them at par value and pay express charges upon them.

The story of the nickel is an interesting one, says the New York Star. Very few people in this country imagine how much profit Uncle Sam makes out of the stamping of these small coins. The actual cost of a nickel to the Government is not much more than three-quarters of a cent. For-merly the metal was fixed, planned and pre-pared for use in the National work-shops at the various mints, but now the metal is purchased and prepared by outsiders under contract. All the Government does now is to put its stamp upon the blanks and than oput its stamp upon the blanks and than gather in its profit on their circulation.

The total amount of these coins issued in a year will average about $600,000, and as very few of them ever return to plague the Government, the actual profit to the National Treasury can be easily calculated. Nickels and pennies are, of course, redeemable by the Treasury in other money when able by the Treasury in other money when a demand is made, but this occurs only oc-casionally, and then the coins are sent to the mint, cleaned up and sent into circula-

It is about the same story in reference to pennies. The Government buys the metal out of which they are made ready for use and pays so much a pound for it, when it is cut and prepared for stamping. Then the mint puts the legal mark upon the coins and they are turned out by the million. What do they cost? Well, every cent that is coined brings in a profit of three-quarters of a cent to the Government than profit of the constraint than the constraint that the constraint t ment. More pennies than nickels are re-turned to the Treasury in exchange for other money, but they are sent promptly to the mint, and soon get into the hands of the public once again. A bronze penny or a nickel five-cent piece does not wear out as rapidly as a dollar bill. But there is still another source of profit to the Government in the issuing of these small coins. One of the most expert of men at the Sub-Treasury in Wall street de-clared a day or two since that there are still in existence somewhere, floating about the country, bunched up in old stockings or in the hands of curiosity collectors, over 100,000,000 of the old-fashioned copper cents, about 20,000,000 of copper-nickel cents, about 20,000,000 of the present issue of bronze pennies, 25,000,000 of nickel 3-cent pieces and about 200,000,000 of nickel 5-cent pieces. The total value of these outstanding minor coins is, put in round num bers, $120,000,000, and every dollar of this is absolute profit to the Government. The coinage of silver pieces is done mainly by the National mints, and, strange to say, there is more profit in the work than any thing else that the mint does. Under the present law the Treasury is required to buy and coin at least $2,000,000 worth of silver into dollars. This $2,000,000 worth of silver makes nearly $2,250,000, so that the profit on the monthly purchase and coinage of silver dollars is fully $750,000. So the profit on the silver dollars, you see, is about $9,000,000 a year or more, and adding to it the profit on the pennies and nickels brings it up to nearly $10,000,000. Of course, there must be taken out of that the expen-ses of the mint, but they are a comparatively small sum. The process of coining silver pieces is an interesting one, and is the same practically for dimes and for dollars. The silver bullion is first melted and run into bars. These in turn are run through immense rollers and flattened out to the thickness of the coin. These silver strips are then passed through a machine which cuts them into the proper size for the presses, the strips first having been treated with a kind of tal-low to prevent their being scratched in their passage through the cutters. The silver pieces are then put into the feeder of the printing presses, and are fed to the die by automatic machinery. As the smooth pieces are pressed between the ponderous printing dies they receive the lettered and that of paper pressed upon a form of type; at the same time the piece is expanded in a slight degree and the small corrugations are cut into its rim. The machine drops the completed coin into a receiver and it is ready for the counter's hand. The instrument used by the counter is not a complicated machine by any means, as one might suppose. It is a simple cop-per-covered tray, having raised ridges running across its surface at a distance apart the exact width of a dime. From the receiver the money is dumped on to this board or tray, and as it is shaken rapidly by the counter, the pieces settle down into the spaces between the ridges. All these spaces being filled, the surplus is brushed back into the receiver, and the counter has exactly 1,250 dimes, $125, on this tray, which number is required to fill the spaces. The number is required to fill the spaces. The tray is then emptied into boxes, and the money is ready for shipment.

The dime does not pass through the weigher's hands, as does the coin of a larger denomination. One and one-half grains is allowed for variation or "tolerance" in all silver coins from one dollar down, and the deviation from the standard in the tentral recent is set iffiled that the tray the set. cent pieces is so trifling that the trouble of weighing coins of this denomination is dis-

Logic Among Friends.

If people wish to live well together, they must not hold too much logic, and suppose that every thing is to be settled by sufficient reason. Dr. Johnson saw this clearly with regard to married people, when he said: "Wretched would be the pair above all names of wretchedness who should be said: "Wretched would be the pair above all names of wretchedness who should be doomed to adjust by reason, every morning, all the minute details of a domestic day." But the application should be much more general than he made it. There is no time for such reasonings, and nothing that is worth them. And when we recollect how two lawyers, or two politicians, can go on contending, and that there is no end of one sided reasoning on any subject, we shall not be sure that such contention is the best mode for arriving at truth. But it is not the way to arrive at good temper.

Remedy for Sore Throat, At this season, when sore throats are so prevalent, there is a great deal of talk about the proper remedies for them. Chlorate of potash, which was so long popular, has been decided by experts of the throat to be not decided by experts of the throat to be not only serious injury to the throat, but almost poison. A late remedy is perhaps the best on record, and it is a very simple one. A teaspoonful of alum and one tablespoonful of best French brandy, put in a half tumbler of water, or a half-pint of water will modify it better. This gargle should be used several times during the day, and at night if the irritation or pain is troublesome. It will be found an invaluable throat corrective.

"This was how it happened: I was looking for squirrels, and had shot several in a narrow ravine which I was following up. I had got near the head of the gully when a squirrel ran up a tree on the bank to my right. Before I could get a shot at him he had disappeared, leaping into another tree. The banks of the ravine were eight or ten feet high at this point. I thought I would climb up and see if I could add that squirrel to the contents of my game-bag. By the climb up and see if I could add that squirrel to the contents of my game-bag. By the aid of a sapling growing half way up the bank I drew myself up with one hand, holding my gun with the other. Just as I placed my hand on top of a rock and was about to spring out I saw the squirrel. I was hesitating whether I should try to shoot him where I stood when I chanced to shoot him where I stood, when I chanced look where my hand was resting.

He had been sunning himself on top of the rock and I had disturbed his nap. I forgot my gun, forgot the squirrel, and every thing else except the snake. There I stood looking at him and watching his eyes. But I must either climb up or get down, as my position was decidedly uncom-fortable. When I realized the necessity for action I drew my gun up to my shoulder as cautiously as I could, fired, and shot the snake. The squirrel, of course, disappeared, and I concluded I'd better get down where the earth was more solid. ### AN INTER-STATE EPISODE.

The Historical Situation That Gave Rise to a Proverbial Saying.

As every one knows, North and South Carolina were of the thirteen original States of the Union, and for many years after this Nation became free the twin commonwealths grew and prospered. In the early part of the present century, however, says the Minneapolis Journal, a cloud no larger than two men's hands ap-peared upon the Carolinian horizon, and grew until it threatened to wreck the social fabric of the two States. The Governor of North Carolina quarreled with the Governor of South Carolina. The Executive of the Tarheel State publicly stated that his colleague of the Palmetto Com-monwealth was "no better than he should be." This, as may be imagined, aroused the wrath of the Governor of South Caro lina, and he issued a manifesto declaring the Governor of North Carolina would be better if he were not worse. Thereupon grave complications arose, and, for a time an internecine war was threatened. The people greatly regretted the quarrel, and the most able and skilfull diplomats of the two States bent their utmost energies to the pacification of their now madden superfors. Finally, after months of strenuous effort, a meeting was arranged be-tween the two Govornors, with a view of settling the difficulty. On one never-to-be-forgotten day the two Governors met in the magnificent mansion of the Governor of North Carolina, at Raleigh. The Governor of South Carolina was travel-worn, hungry, thirsty and tired. As last they stood face to face, the most im-pressive moment in the history of North Carolina. For a minute neither great man spoke. Then the Governor of North Carolina, extending his right hand, and placing the index finger of his left hand upon the side of his nose, gazed in the eve of his foe and said: "It is a long time between drinks!" And the Governor of South Carolina grasping the hand of his adversary and measuring off the four fingers of his left hand, said:

Then the Governor of North Carolina ordered a huge bowl of Jamaica rum punch, and he and the Governor of South Carolina washed away all remembrances of their

And they lived happily ever after. OUR NATIONAL FLOWER.

An Eastern Lady Claims This Title for the Modest Pansy.

Florists and others at the East have been discussing the question of the most popular flower of the conutry. Some prefer the may flower, some the rose, others the daisy. But Henrietta T. Hollowell, in an article in the Boston Globe, champions claims of the pansy as the National flower of America, saying: Watch the children in the public garden as they gather around the brilliant beds of their favorite, and its name, pansy, must certainly occur to you. Pansy typifies thought. Shakspeare and Milton both make honorable mention of it. Of the same genus as the violet, by cultivation it has be come much finer and richer in its nature, as the people of the different nationalities, develop into pobler men and women by be coming American citizens.

Is not variety in unity characteristic of our people, and what flower represents such a pleasing variety, though retaining the perfect characteristic of its type? It is of various markings and colors, from Mil-ton's "pansy 'freaked with jet" to white, through different shades of purple, blue, orange and yellow.

It is already known and loved by those of all ages. Children love it, and take delight in finding faces in the pretty flowers. Babies play with it and lay it against their soft cheeks, and there is no rough exterior to burt their tender skin. Old men and "women smile when they see it and whis-por, heart's-ease."

It can be successfully cultivated in any part of our broad land, and just because our country is so grand, I think no one wild flower should grow in all sections. There must necessarily be the Northern pine and the Southern palmetto, but we can at least unite on one flower which, with a little care will thrive in all sections. Then, let us nominate for our National flower, the people's flower, the children's flower, "pan-sies; that's for thoughts."

Labor in Japan.

In Japan the wages of carpenters are from 30 to 45 cents a day; wood carvers, 35 to 53 cents; paper hangers, 23 to 45 cents; stone cutters, 45 to 53 cents; blacksmiths, 23 to 38 cents; gardeners, 19 to 38 cents; day laborers, 15 to 23 cents. The workingmen pay 40 cents per month rent for a house of one room, $2.25 per month for food and $3.75 per year for clothes. This schedule of wages and living will hardly prove complacent reading to the average American workingman. Labor in Japan.
